PROMINENT CANADIAN LAWYER DELIVERS BRILLIANT ADDRESS TO MCGILL CANADIAN CLUB

PROBLEMS CONFRONTING CANADA--MCGILL'S PECULIAR RESPONSIBILITY AS A PREMIER SEAT OF LEARNING

IMPERIAL RELATIONS DISCUSSED.

"The Origin and Significance of the Nationalist Movement" was the subject chosen by Mr. C. H. Cahan for his address to the Canadian Club of McGill University at the Union on Monday afternoon. Mr. Cahan took as his main point the well-known words of the President of the United States, "Canada now stands at the parting of the ways," and around this he weaved the lesson that he wished to teach.

According to Mr. Cahan the great problem facing Canada is her relation to the Empire. He held that on this issue the parting of the ways had not yet been reached, that there had as yet been no cleavage of political opinion. Canada had held the opinion that her best way to serve the great Empire was to build up her railway and public works and maintain her militia and defense against possible aggression. Out of this growth of social and business interests had arisen a more definite Canadian national life.

In our recent elections we expressed our confidence in our future and the future of our institutions. We repudiated the idea of allying ourselves with the great Republic to the south. Now we find ourselves with another problem of moment, our present status as a colony and our political relations with the big Empire of which we form a part. Are we to develop an independent Canadian Nation, or preserve the ties that bind us to the rest of the British Empire? We have to determine whether we will build up a navy for our own defense, or co-operate with the other self-governing units of the Empire, and help maintain her supremacy and prestige. Should we choose the latter course we should insist upon a frank concession to Canada of a supreme control in Canadian matters, and that we should participate in control of Imperial affairs in proportion to the cost to us of helping to safeguard the interests of the Empire.

In view of the fact that supreme control was now vested in the Imperial Parliament it will be impossible for us to continue in the Empire unless represented in her Councils. Mr. Cahan believes that we Canadians are quite ready for naval defense upon this understanding.

He rather scouted the idea of a Plebiscite because he did not believe that the trend of public opinion in Canada was favourable to the settlement of vital issues as the present one by such means.

However, we are prepared, said Mr. Cahan to co-operate with the Empire on a basis which offers us equality of citizenship to the Empire. But we must be partners in controlling her destinies. The French-Canadian knew full well that the Chambre des Deputes invited representation to all colonies of French. Canadians of whatever race would rather work out their destinies within Imperial limits than without, but first we must ascertain through our own Parliament whether the British are willing to let us have our just share in regulating the affairs of our Empire.

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT CONSIDERS MCGILL'S DEMANDS

LONG DEFERRED STEP AT LAST TO BE TAKEN--EPOCH-MAKING STATEMENT ANTICIPATED

As the outcome of the banquet tendered to Sir Lomer Gouin by the officers of McGill, an informal luncheon was held today at Freeman's Hotel. It was attended by the officials of the University and those interested in her welfare. Mr. Peter MacKenzie, the Provincial Treasurer of Quebec, was to have made an official announcement as to exactly what the Province was prepared to do for McGill in the way of financial assistance. What Mr. MacKenzie said, or whether or not he really did say anything was not made public last night and the Faculty would make no announcement. It is to be hoped that the Province will see its way clear to come through with something handsome for its premier University.

QUACKS AND QUACKERY PLAYED BY SPEAKER

"Quacks and Quackery" was the subject of a very interesting lecture delivered by Dr. McCrae in the Royal Victoria College Auditorium. This lecture is the first of a series being delivered under the auspices of McGill University Faculty.

Dr. McCrae is an eloquent speaker, who demonstrated a comprehensive grasp of his subject.

The different types of quackery first occupied his attention. The ignorant would-be doctor, who manufactures and patents injurious alcoholic concoctions, and overpowering opiates, and catches the gullible hypochondriac, who thinks himself afflicted with all the ailments in the medical book. The second class of quack is not so dangerous, but just as objectionable, that is the man who simply brews a useless collection of ingredients and sells it to the unfortunate sufferer, who, by the mere fact of being in an abnormal condition, is singularly amenable to the wiles of such nefarious gentry.

Dr. McCrae went on to instance a number of the glaring and palpable quacks of the last few decades—pointing out in just what way they had been successful—in wringing the millions from the reader of the blatant advertisements.

The lecturer then attacked the quack doctors, who travelled around, working wonderful cures, to use as advertisements in securing wealthier and more lucrative patients. He gave instances of certain "doctors" who had drawn particularly large fees; all the attention of the audience specially to the tremendous fee exacted from Princess Catherine of Russia by a certain medical man, for curing her of a troublesome disease, for which he not only received a king's ransom, but also the enviable title of "Baron."

The lecture proved an entirely interesting one, and should act as a considerable drawing card in filling the Hall for the next lecture, the date of which will be announced in the Daily.

MARITIME PROVINCES PROVED TO BE PROPERLY SAFEGUARDED

Unfavorable weather conditions prevented a large attendance at the final of the preliminary debates qualifying for intercollegiate competition, which was held on Monday night at the Union.

Despite the small number present, however, the argument was often of a heated nature, and occasionally the speeches became quite animated.

The subject was the following:—
"Resolved that at Confederation and ever since the interests of the Maritime Provinces have been sacrificed to the interests of the other parts of the Dominion."

Messrs. Hugessen, Babcock and Mathewson upheld the affirmative, while Messrs. Farthing, McCrimmon and Holland spoke against the resolution.

Mr. Hugessen opened the debate with a thorough treatment of the political conditions surrounding the B. N. A. Act of 1867. Upper Canada proper, he declared, had entered into the Union in a spirit of self-aggrandizement, which boded ill for the Maritime Provinces.

Of the boasted shipping industry which to these provinces had proved the most important asset, little remained once Confederation had made its effect felt.

The Union to them was manifestly unfair and absurd upon the face of it for various reasons, one of them being the unfavorable financial arrangements which were at the time negotiated.

The inflated debt of Ontario and Quebec had been foisted upon the Maritime Provinces to a most uncharitable degree. Previous to Confederation Nova Scotia, the speaker asserted, possessed practically the same lines of railway as she does to-day so far as the I. C. R. is concerned, so that this railway should not be regarded as one of the benefits accruing from the Union.

Turning his attention to Newfoundland he believed it was singularly fortunate for that country that she had consistently refused to become a part of Canada. He concluded with the remark that unquestionably Canada had benefited by Confederation at the expense of the Maritime Provinces.

Mr. Farthing followed for the negative and contended that the issue was a dead one, that there existed no such feeling in these provinces which gave expression to the idea contained in the resolution. It was a question of purely academic interest.

The leader of the affirmative had exceeded the bounds of propriety in looking upon the prominent men of Ontario and Quebec at the time of the Union as political hucksters.

So strongly in favor of Confederation did Nova Scotia vote, that out of 21 seats more than two-thirds were in favor of the consolidation.

In regard to the previous speaker's remarks concerning Newfoundland, he declared that country to be much less prosperous than the Maritime Provinces where a normal increase in population had undoubtedly taken place.

The leader of the affirmative had spoken of the great advantages of British Rule, but had the Maritime Province interests been properly safeguarded the States of Maine and Michigan would now form Provinces of Canada, and important links in the chain of Empire.

It was impossible to see how the Act of Confederation had in any way sacrificed the interests of these provinces. Since they were in favor of entering the Union, and it brought them into touch with the other Provinces of Canada.

The next speaker was Mr. Babcock

At the outset he referred to the remarks of the previous speaker as political hot air similar to that in vogue during the recent elections.

The three great essentials of a prosperous country, he continued, were population, policy and position. Without population there could be no manufactures. In the policy of the Government lay its power to promote industry. The Maritime Provinces had not prospered because by the policy of the Federal Government they had been sacrificed. Statistics showed a small increase if not a decrease in population. Coal areas were undeveloped because of the tariff barrier existing between Nova Scotia and the United States and the great cost of its transportation to middle or Western Canada. He referred in no uncertain terms to the methods pursued by the Massey-Harris Co., and drew an analogy between their methods and the policy adopted by the Dominion re the Maritime Provinces.

Their proximity to the States, and the fact that the U. S. wanted Nova Scotia coal should have persuaded the Government to attempt the lowering of the tariff wall which existed between these Provinces and the great American Republic.

Deprecating the value of national pride to any nation when it stood in the way of economic development he declared that the Maritime Provinces should have a perfect right to demand annexation to the United States if they believed it would promote their national prosperity.

The second speaker on the negative was Mr. McCrimmon who in his opening remarks reproached his opponents from degressing from the question, and contended that the terms of the agreement and financial arrangements of the Confederation pact were obviously fair to the provinces by the sea. These Provinces were isolated and divided into factions. The result of the Union was to perfect a bond of mutual sympathy and harmony which has prevailed to the present time.

The peculiar advantages of the Maritime Provinces lay in their stretch of coast line, their magnificent harbors, upon which the Dominion Government has been lavish in its expenditure.

Notwithstanding what had been said to the contrary, these provinces had normally increased their population. To-day there were six towns in these provinces each of which contained more than 20,000 inhabitants, all built up under Confederation.

As for Newfoundland it was heavily in debt, and presented many complex problems owing to the French shore difficulty.

Mr. Mathewson then spoke for the affirmative. He pointed out that the trade from the Upper Provinces going East twice exceeded that coming West, middle Canada doing all the manufacturing for the Maritime Provinces.

Referring to many of the alleged political promises made by famous politicians of the past, he asserted that few had been fulfilled, though it was not inconceivable that good faith had prompted them. He stared hard at Prof. Leacock, who was acting in the capacity of judge, when he spoke of the geniuses from Ontario teaching in Quebec.

Because many men of the Maritime provinces had figured prominently in Dominion politics that was due to ability, he concluded, and not owing to any equitable representation.

Mr. Holland closed the debate for the negative, and occupied so much of his attention with a detailed treatment of the relations existing between Howe and Tupper that he had but a few minutes to devote to the remainder of his speech.

Lord Durham in his report had suggested Confederation for the Maritime Provinces and Canada proper, and the former were not an unwilling party to the bargain.

In concluding his remarks the

McGILL'S EDUCATIONAL ACHIEVEMENTS IN THE LAST WEST.

Probably the most unique phase of the educational work which McGill has been privileged to perform during the past quarter of a century is the stimulus she has given to advanced education in Western Canada. It is now some fifteen years since McGill, from purely disinterested motives, took upon herself to provide the citizens of Canada's most Westerly Province with the opportunity of equipping themselves with a university education.

The growth of the two colleges established at Vancouver and Victoria have been steady and vigorous. From a mere handful of students the colleges have developed into full-fledged university establishments. A great deal of the credit for this is due to the enthusiastic and optimistic efforts of Dean Adams, Dean Moysie, Principal Peterson and Dr. Tory.

As a result of McGill contributing some of her best academic and organizing talent to build up a nucleus of a great university, the Province of British Columbia naturally feels that she owes a debt of obligation which cannot be easily paid. Amongst Canadian Universities that draw students from the West, none outside of McGill can hope for a single minute to enjoy universal popularity and respect. The professional and technical classes are, to a great extent, the monopoly of McGill graduates. Not that any undue favoritism is shown, but merely because McGill graduates have shown themselves, time and again, to be eminently worthy of every trust and responsibility. Then again, there seems to be a spirit of affinity between McGill and the far West. This old centre of education, with its traditions of learning and intellectual triumphs which have been cherished for almost a century, is not oblivious to the call of the land of greatest opportunity—that province where the grandeur of nature is seen in its most impressive form—that province the resources of which, both in extent and variety, are almost without parallel. It is surely a supreme satisfaction to feel that in the developing and rendering available the enormous latent wealth of this new province McGill is playing no small part. She has established on a very firm basis the nucleus of a university. She has contributed very largely to the most prominent and active citizens who are the leaders in this work of development.

A NEW SONG BOOK.

Now that all the undergraduate musical organizations are experiencing a re-creation and seem to be placed on a vigorous and up-to-date footing, it is surely time to commence discussing what we are going to do in the matter of a new song book. The one in use at present answered its purpose for twelve or thirteen years, but it has naturally become somewhat antiquated, and some changes must be made right away. Back in the nineties, when McGill got out her first song book, it made quite a sensation in the Canadian University world. Other Colleges, notably Toronto, took occasion to copy McGill almost immediately. The McGill songs were adapted to suit local conditions, and with some slight alterations the same book was placed on the market under various names. McGill naturally felt rather gratified that the movement which she had initiated was receiving the co-operation and adoption of no small number of her sister universities in the Dominion of Canada.

It is not so very long ago that McGill was noted for her musical organizations. In the days of the late George V. Cousines and his contemporaries, including, of course, Bill Steedman of football fame, we possessed a Glee Club and Orchestra which were universally recognized as the best on the Continent. But times have changed and there is little doubt but that of late musical affairs have been experiencing a decided slump. There are signs, however, that in the cycle of things a prosperous era is again returning, and in the near future we can look forward to having at McGill just as efficient a Glee Club and Orchestra as was ever in College.

Meanwhile, we wish to urge on everyone the necessity of thinking over the matter of a song book, and the means by which a new one on up-to-date lines can be secured at the earliest possible date. We would recommend that the various musical organizations lose no time in appointing a committee to give this matter most thorough consideration. We might even venture to suggest that the affair is of sufficient importance to merit the attention of the Students' Council. The general spirit of renewed vigor which is recog-

THE PRESIDENT OF THE A. A. AGAIN.

A meeting was held after the Canadian Club meeting on Monday afternoon to decide the question as to whether or not the President of the Athletic Association shall be a member of the Students' Council. Owing to the fact that a quorum was not on hand the meeting could not act upon the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the Students' Society. The reason for such a small meeting was probably due to insufficient publicity, and also to the fact that the Student body at large have not realized the importance of the question at issue. Although interested in the effect of a change each man was willing to leave its decision to the other fellow. Any changes in the composition of the Students' Council are in reality of vital importance to every student, as its policy cannot be but largely shaped by the interests which its members represent. In other words if the majority of men on the Council represent a certain interest the Council's policy will, of necessity, be influenced very greatly by the interest. And, considering the small membership of the Council, it may readily be seen that even an increase of one member might make a great alteration in this policy. Consequently the question of additions ought to be very carefully weighed.

Before the meeting to decide this question is called time will be given for some discussion of the subject in these columns in order than an intelligent grasp of the different aspects of the question may be obtained. When the meeting does assemble it is hoped that the decision of a matter in which every student is interested will not be left in the hands of a paltry hundred and fifty or two hundred. We have all been proud of the greater "McGill spirit" which has manifested itself this fall. Do not let our ardour be the kind that is chilled by the breath of winter.

K. W. DOWIE OFFERS OPINION ON PROPOSED ADDITION PROMINENT ATHLETE BELIEVES PRESIDENT OF A.A. SHOULD BE PLACED ON THE COUNCIL

THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION AND THE STUDENTS' COUNCIL.

In an interview yesterday Mr. Dowie made the following statement: "On Monday a mass meeting of students was called in the Union to discuss whether or not the President of the Athletic Association should hold a seat on the Students' Council. Owing to the lack of a quorum, it has been necessary to postpone the meeting."

"The non-attendance of so many students has been due, no doubt, not to lack of interest in the subject under discussion, but more probably to an ignorance of the issue at stake, and of its immense importance to every student."

"It is with the object of dispelling this ignorance that these remarks are made. Ever since the Students' Council has been in existence it has been felt by students who had anything to do with athletics that the A. A. was not sufficiently represented on the Council. What! you say, and are not the Presidents of the Football, Track, and Hockey Clubs members of the Students' Council? Yes, but these three men are members of the A. A. as presidents of 'Major Clubs'—that is, clubs whose membership includes every student of the University who pays the athletic fee and who are not connected with the ten other minor clubs making up the A. A. To put in briefly, non-representation of the minor clubs has been one good argument in favour of having the president of the A. A. made a member of the Students' Council, as he is doubtless the man best able to represent them."

"A scheme at one time thought of to avoid making the Students' Council any bigger, was to have one of the three athletic representatives on the Students' Council be the representative, at the same time, of the whole Athletic Association. This is obviously inadvisable, in that it gives that man more executive work than he can handle efficiently, and also does not secure the best representation of minor clubs on the Council. The other great reason in favor of this proposed change is that the connection between the Students' Council and the Athletic Association is not strong enough. That is to say, things are continually happening in meetings of the A. A. that the Council should hear about, but does not. There might quite conceivably be meetings at which all the three Council members were absent. A case in point occurred when our Hockey Team made a recent trip to New York. The trip was approved by the A. A. but the Council knew nothing of the matter until it had been decided upon. It so happened that the Club made money on that trip, but it might have been otherwise, and the Council would have had to stand the deficit."

"The objection has been raised that by adding a President of the A. A. to the Council, the personnel of the latter will become too distinctly athletic, but this is a little far fetched, in that most of the money handled by the Council is obtained by the three dollars athletic fee. Moreover, the past history of the Council has shown us that the athletic representatives have been the best workers, and have never let their capacities as athletic men bias their general good judgment upon other matters."

"There is another point that might strike one as of doubtful value. This is in connection with the election of future presidents of the A. A. In days gone by when the President of the A. A. had no seat upon the Council, he has been elected from the members of the A. A. (comprising the presidents of our Athletic Clubs and themselves.) This we believe to be a perfectly good system, and the proposed new circumstance seems scarcely right that fifteen men should have the right of electing from among them a man who should hold a seat on the Council, even although they are picked men, being members of their respective Clubs. It would seem to me that a better system of election would be to let the old system of having him elected by the student body by every man who had a vote, but having the privilege of electing, however, is not a mass meeting of students for one for the A. A. has been said that our clubs, such as Boxing,

Basket Ball, Swimming, English Rugby and Rifle, interest the majority of students who take part in athletics.

"If this is so, watch out you members of these clubs for the date of the postponed mass meeting; attend in force, and see that Mr. Rogers is elected to the Students' Council. His election should prove of great value to you, and it will incidentally effect a much needed reform in our athletic world at McGill."

RECENT IMPROVEMENTS IN AMERICAN FOOTBALL

TENDENCY THIS YEAR IS TOWARDS ELIMINATION OF MASS PLAYS AND A MORE OPEN GAME.

Every game of football played this year has brought out the fact that the American game is rapidly acquiring some of the elements of the English rugby sport. There are many points, since the elimination of mass plays, that are similar in both, and it is only a question of time, according to some experts, before the American college game will assimilate still more of the principles of the English pastime.

Probably the most noteworthy feature is the fact that football has been made more open resembling rugby in this particular respect more than in any other. By one of the last modifications adopted at a recent meeting of the coaches and members of the Rules Committee, an offensive player, carrying the ball, shall receive no assistance from any of his team-mates. This was adopted to eliminate in a large measure the many injuries due to the mass play and to interference. It provides for more individuality as in rugby, and also makes the sport more spectacular.

Another feature of the similarity has been brought about by the use of the forward pass. Ever since the new play was placed in the code, until this season, a penalty was given the team which failed to complete the play, provided the ball struck the ground before hitting another player. Since the fifteen yard penalty has been removed and only an additional down has been added for failure to complete the play the forward pass will be used more than in the past.

The tendency now is to give the spectator a more brilliant and more spectacular exhibition. With the forward pass and long sweeping runs, football is rapidly taking on many of the features of the game of our English cousins.

The new rules are meeting with favor among players, spectators and coaches, and it is not expected the immediate future will see any of those sweeping changes necessary several years ago.—Exchange.

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

PRESIDENT THOMSON EXPRESSES HIS VIEWS.

Mr. H. F. Thomson, President of the Basketball Club, when interviewed by a staff reporter at Strathcona Hall, expressed himself as being extremely optimistic in regard to the Basketball situation. Although Toronto has Mel Brock back on their line-up this year, it is said that the team as a whole is nothing out of the ordinary. It looks as if McGill was the one best bet for the Intercollegiate Championship and it is certain that the prospects were never brighter.

The Sophomores and Freshmen will meet in the second game of the inter year series on Wednesday at 4 p.m. Mr. Thomson expressed a strong hope that a large crowd would turn out for the game. McGill cannot hope to win the Intercollegiate Championship at basketball or any other sport if the teams do not get the right kind of support. We want to see YOU down at the gym on Wednesday afternoon.

As regards the New England trip, the itinerary has not yet been fully decided upon and we cannot make any announcements until replies have been received from the American Universities.

Four hundred fraternity men will attend an inter-fraternity banquet at the University of Minnesota on October 27.

The Sophomores at Indiana hauled down the flag guarded by the Freshmen in less than two minutes, in the annual rush.

Princeton football coaches are the fleet and elusive Pendleton, the star half-back of last year's eleven.

Minnesota is preparing a celebration in honor of the inauguration of President Vincent, which takes place on October 17.

SITUATIONS IN INTERPROVINCIAL COMPLICATED---THREE-CORNERED TIE SEEMS INEVITABLE

SENSATIONAL FINISHES IN BOTH INTERPROVINCIAL GAMES.

Varsity kept up their winning streak by easily defeating Queens on Saturday by a score of 23 to 6. Queens were outplayed in every department of the game and Varsity gave a great exhibition of all round playing which promises well for their crucial game with Ottawa College next Saturday and their subsequent success in the tussle for Dominion honors. The feature of the game was a run of 100 yards by Captain Jack Maynard for a touchdown. Varsity had worked the ball out to the 10 yard line when the elusive left saw an opening and got through the Queen's line and eluding half a dozen tackles went practically the whole length of the field for a touch. Maynard's weak ankle went back on him in the last quarter and he was compelled to retire, his place being taken by Dale who did the punting against McGill in Toronto. Ramsay played a stellar game on the back division, catching, punting and running faultlessly while Pete Campbell was as good as ever at quarter. Sinclair, Hassard and Cory showed up the strongest on the line. Greene lived up to the reputation he made for himself on the Campus two weeks ago and has strengthened up the team enormously. For Queens Leckie and Haslett did the bulk of the work. McGill extends its heartiest congratulations to Toronto and feels confident that if they defeat Ottawa on Saturday they will continue to uphold the superiority of Intercollegiate football over that played in the O. R. F. U. and the Interprovincial.

The first of the home and home games for the Intermediate Championship was pulled off in Toronto on Saturday when the R. M. C. succeeded in piling up a six point lead over Varsity Intermediates, winning handily by a score of 24 to 18. Cadets played an aggressive game from the start and the result was never seriously in doubt. After this victory on their opponents ground they should have no trouble in piling up a big score in the final game next week and winning the Intermediate for the third year in succession. The Cadets have always displayed fine portsmanship in their games here and are very popular at McGill. They have our best wishes for their success.

The results of the two Interprovincial games last week have put that league into a state where a three-cornered tie is almost bound to result. It is generally conceded that Argos stand a very small chance of beating Ottawa in Ottawa and Montreal have even less of beating Tigers ere. One of these unlikely contingencies has got to occur to prevent a three-cornered tie. The question is one of vital importance to the Intercollegiate. Our season closes on November 11th, and in the event of a tie up in the Interprovincial, the earliest possible date for the final game between the winners of the Intercollegiate and the winner of the O. R. F. U.—Interprovincial semifinal will be Dec. 9th. This means that Varsity or Ottawa College will have to keep in condition for nearly a month to play this one game. It is highly unlikely that they will consent to do this and it would be unreasonable to expect them to. So that everyone who is anxious to see the superiority of Intercollegiate football again demonstrated should pray or the unexpected to happen on Saturday.

The finish of the Tiger-Argo game in Hamilton was probably the most sensational ever seen in the Interprovincial. With exactly 20 minutes to lay and the score 8 to 6 against them Tigers obtained possession on Argos 20 yard line. On the first own the Argos interfered in the scrimmage and Tigers were in possession 10 yards out. After consultation between the officials it was decided that the whistle should be blown immediately the ball was dead after the first scrimmage. On the first down Hope Gibson dropped a goal and Tigers had won 9 to 8. The finish of the Montreal-Ottawa game was hardly less sensational, Ottawa coming up from behind in the last few minutes and winning out in the last minute by 18 to 17. Jack Williams "came back" in wonderful style and practically won the game for Ottawa.

RADICAL BUT IMPROVED CHANCES MADE IN I. U. D. L. CONSTITUTION

HIGHLY HARMONIOUS AND SUCCESSFUL MEETING HELD ON SATURDAY

Several radical amendments to the constitution, which should ensure a higher standard of intercollegiate debate, were made at the annual meeting of the Inter University Debating League, which took place Saturday afternoon at Kingston, Ontario, in the Club Room of the new Arts Building of Queen's University.

Those present included a representative from each of the four universities forming the League. E. B. Wylie of Queen's presided.

The first business to occupy the attention of the delegates was the reading of last year's minutes and the treasurer's report, showing a satisfactory surplus, both of which received the approval of the meeting.

Upon motion of G. F. Laywell, Varsity, seconded by P. W. Hackett, Ottawa, a resolution was passed to the effect that the Secretary of the Toronto Varsity Undergraduate Parliament be advised that the I. U. D. L. meeting will take place there next year, that he inform the I. U. D. L. representatives of the various Universities, and that the date be decided upon by the Varsity representative who will be the incoming president.

Considerable discussion then ensued as to Act XII of the I. U. D. L. constitution here reproduced:

"At least two weeks prior to a debate, the honorary officer appointed by the Society to which the home team belongs, shall have selected two judges and the three shall be judges for that debate. In case the honorary officer is unable to act as judge, he shall appoint three judges."

Mr. MacNaughton, of McGill, moved, seconded by Mr. Hackett, Ottawa, and carried, that the foregoing article XII be amended to read as follows:

"At least three weeks prior to a debate, the president of the league shall have submitted to the societies of the teams debating a list of judges, one of which must be mutually agreeable to the two societies, and he shall constitute the sole judge of the debate. The term 'judges' shall be interpreted to mean members of the Bench, and in every case he who is a graduate of a higher court and being a judge of neither university competing, shall receive preference."

When this amendment had been adopted, the opinions of several of the representatives were expressed as to the advisability of rearranging the number of points at present awarded for "matter" and "delivery" as contained in Art. XIII, which formerly read as follows:

"In deciding a debate the judge shall award to each team a definite number of points for matter (maximum 75) and for delivery (minimum 25). The term matter shall be understood to include the logical presentation and arrangement of the arguments, as well as the arguments themselves; and no regard shall be had for the merits of the case, per se."

The following amendment moved by Mr. Laywell, Varsity, seconded by Mr. MacNaughton, McGill and carried, was passed to replace the article just quoted, Art. XIII, which will now read as follows:

"In deciding a debate, the judge shall award to each team a definite number of points for matter (maximum 60) and for delivery (maximum 40). The term matter shall be understood to include the logical arguments as well as the arguments themselves, and no regard shall be had for the merits of the case, per se. The term delivery shall be interpreted as meaning 'true debating form.'"

Then followed a resolution, moved by Mr. Hackett, seconded by Mr. MacNaughton and carried, imposing a levy of twenty-five dollars upon each society for the expenses of the league and containing a clause that a levy also be made next term if found necessary. It was also decided that a copy of the minutes and the constitution as amended be forwarded to each representative by the secretary-treasurer.

The schedule of debates for the ensuing year with their dates and places, where held, was then arranged as follows:

Preliminary Debates — Friday, December 1. McGill at Toronto. Tuesday, December 5. Queen's at Ottawa.

Final Debate — January 25. If Toronto and Queens win, final at Queen's; if Toronto and Ottawa win, final at Toronto; if Queen's and McGill win, final at McGill; if Ottawa and McGill win, final at McGill.

The officers of the league for the ensuing year were then elected as follows:

Prof. A. R. McCallum (Toronto) Honorary President; Dr. O. D. Skelton (Queen's), Rev. J. P. Fallon, O. M. I. (Ottawa), Dr. S. B. Leacock (McGill), Honorary Vice-Presidents; E. B. Wylie (Queen's), President; G. F. Saywell, (Varsity), P. W. Hackett (Ottawa), Vice-Presidents; J. MacNaughton, (McGill), Secretary Treasurer.

The meeting was remarkable for the great harmony that prevailed and the advanced and progressive legislation enacted. There passed with a total absence of friction two of the most radical amendments in the history of the league, but amendments which are bound to guarantee a much higher standard of debates and a much fairer method in the future of awarding them than have marked Intercollegiate argumentative battles of past years.

SOME PLAIN OPINIONS

McGill's decisive defeat at the hands of Ottawa last Saturday was, as always, the subject of much discussion by the critics around the Union. A McGill Daily reporter, noticing three old-timers with their heads together, hovered around on the outskirts and heard the following opinions expressed:

ANOTHER BOOST FOR PAID COACHING INTERESTING CRITICISMS ON THIS ALL IMPORTANT SUBJECT

Every senior hockey and football team which had played for the last five years was discussed and criticized and the meeting was unanimous in deciding that the McGill teams were "in and outers" in other words not consistent.

The cause of this was ascribed to various reasons, in the case of the hockey team to inability of the players to work together, to improper management, to unsatisfactory opportunities being given to men trying for the team thus causing dissatisfaction, to the fact that each man on the team thought he was just a little bit better than the men who were running things and that for some reason or other the playing men who came into College frequently deteriorated while they were playing for the college team.

It seemed to the trio that what was needed was an autocratic coach whose word should be law and whose object should be to turn out as efficient a team as possible without considering anybody else's ideas or feelings.

In regard to the necessity of a football coach it had been made so plain to all three, that the matter was not discussed at all as it was considered that to every intelligent spectator of the Varsity game this was the feature that was most striking about McGill's play; lack of a guiding hand.

The suggestion was made that, as the hockey prospects were not bright a good coach should be engaged that he should be given carte blanche in handling the team and in the event of his winning a championship he should be given a good substantial bonus.

It was felt in fact that in this way we could see if conditions could not be changed and if instead of McGill being referred to as good losers in the future they might be spoken of as consistent winners.

At the University of Kansas those trying out for football must take a written quiz on the first ten rules of the game.

CLOSER RELATION SOUGHT BETWEEN TWO COLLEGES

CORNELL AND MCGILL MAY ESTABLISH INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION

In another column the Daily announces the proposed hockey series between McGill and Cornell. This is an important event in the history of our University, and argues, we hope, the commencement of a new era of intercourse between the great educational institutions of the continent—an intercourse confined not only to athletics, but entering the field of literary endeavour as well. Why could not some system be arranged whereby lecturers could be exchanged for short periods among the universities of the United States as well as Canada. In 1872 the late Mr. Goldwin Smith, then a professor at Cornell, delivered a lecture in Molson's Hall on "The Destiny of Canada." This distinguished man of letters has been the direct cause of a bond of sympathy ever since between Cornell and the Canadian universities.

In 1865 at Ithaca, N.Y., Ezra Cornell founded the institution which has perpetuated his name. At that time the university was of necessity very small, but its subsequent growth has been phenomenal, so that today its total enrollment approximates 5500 students. The financial position is particularly strong with an endowment of nine millions, and an annual income of a million and a half.

Cornell offers courses of study in a number of branches, including Arts, Engineering, Veterinary Surgery, Agriculture, etc., and includes colleges for women as well as male students. The equipment in the mechanical departments has been perfected to the highest possible degree and attracts graduate as well as undergraduate students.

But the visitor to Cornell is most impressed with the beautiful location of the various buildings situated as they are in a hill, looking down as it were on the community proper, and commanding an excellent view of the beautiful Lake Cayuga. Their architectural design and harmonious arrangement leave nothing to be desired and the peaks of neighboring hills enhance the singular and unique position of the colleges. The approach to the campus is a short, steep hill with stately trees on either side and the many magnificent fraternity houses add not a little to the charming tout ensemble.

LENNOXVILLE OLD BOYS WILL DINE ON THE 23RD.

At a meeting of the "Old Boys" of B. C. School, Lennoxville, held in city at the office of Mr. Charles M. Holt, K. C., it was decided to hold a dinner at the Place Viger Hotel on Thursday, November 23rd, at 7 p. m.

An effort will be made to personally communicate with all "old boys" in Montreal, and elsewhere, but as there are over one thousand Lennoxville old boys in this city alone, it will be manifestly impossible to do this thoroughly, and the committee hope that all old boys who are able to come will, without invitation, send their names to Mr. H. B. Price, 155 University Street, who has kindly consented to act as hon. secretary for the banquet. — Gazette.

PROFESSOR LEACOCK WILL ADDRESS ARTS UNDERGRAD TO-NIGHT

FIRST STEPS IN POLITICS WILL FORM THE SUBJECT OF INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE LECTURE

The big meeting announced in the Daily several issues back will take place tonight. It is unnecessary to forecast that the evening will be a memorable one for all present. It is to be regretted that the Science Undergrads' Society is scheduled to meet at the same hour. This fact, however, was unknown until arrangements for the above meeting were completed. A recurrence of this in the future will be carefully avoided. We do not wish to go adverse to the greatly improved spirit which the present term is seeing amongst all the faculties in their varied relations.

In the past the Arts Society has greatly appreciated the addresses delivered by Professors from Medicine and Applied Science. Arts has, at times, been given the opportunity of returning the compliment. An exchange of professors and inter-faculty meetings is bound to dispel from a man's mind the thought that his particular faculty is the whole thing. This gives everyone a chance to know what the other faculties are thinking and doing.

With regard to this particular meeting, we are peculiarly fortunate to secure the services of Dr. Leacock, who is so much in demand of late that he finds it utterly impossible to cover even a very small proportion of his engagements. Dr. Leacock, as well as being an authority on the theory of Economics and Political Science, has had considerable experience in the arena of active politics. His address this evening will be on the subject of "First Steps in Politics." For all those who have any ambition along political or public lines, the evening will be one that cannot be missed. For all those who appreciate the type of lecture which sparkles with genuine humor, while it abounds in valuable instruction, an equally be unable to avoid attending the Arts meeting tonight.

BOHEMIAN GIRL DRAWS BIG CROWDS

The attraction this week at the Princess is one of the best shown this season. "The Bohemian Girl" although an old opera has many new and novel features. The stage setting cannot be excelled and when the curtain rises one wonders how these gorgeous effects are produced. The music is well rendered but at times very difficult to make out the words.

The Aborn Opera Company in presenting the Bohemian Girl left nothing out which would in any way attract or add to the well-known ballad opera. Not only do the horses and poultry add to the realism of Bohemian life but the introduction of a real Bohemian troupe of acrobats the "Izani," make one feel as if he were in the wilderness. The various movements which the men go through come in such rapid succession and of such a novel nature that one wonders whether they are really human beings. The show is well worth seeing if only to watch this troupe go through their wonderful performance.

Miss Helen Campbell as the Bohemian Girl is charming both as a clever little actress and as one possessed with an equally charming voice.

Mr. Herbert Watrous as the hero performs his part well and the rendering of his two songs, "The Heart Bowed Down," and "When Other Lips" were applauded for echoes.

The chorus of the company is one of the largest seen here and is exceptionally well trained.

SCIENCE '13 DEBATING CLUB VISIT CANADIAN HYDRO-ELECTRIC PLANT

The 1913 Science Debating Club accompanied by Prof. Christie and Mr. Thornton visited the power plant of the Canadian Hydro Electric Power Company, at St. Timothee on Saturday. The excursion left on the C. P. R. morning train.

At the plant Prof. Christie and Mr. Thornton gave interesting discourses on the machinery. The party enjoyed lunch at the Engineers' Club. The trip was a great success and the excursion returned to the city at 4 o'clock after a very enjoyable and profitable day.

For the benefit of those who were unable to attend, our special representative gives the following outline of the plant:

CANADIAN HYDRO-ELECTRIC PLANT, ST. TIMOTHEE.

The Company's dam is 350' by 32', which furnishes the necessary "head" to operate the turbines. The generating system consists of three turbines generating 2300 volts; this is transformed to 45,000 volts for transmission. In case of stoppage, game.

the plant is provided with storage capacity for 5 hours.

A new plant of 6 more dynamos, to generate 50,000 K.W. hours is under construction.

STADIUM WILL SEAT 20,000

Although the Campus was literally one large pool of water, the majority of the Varsity Senior Rugby players turned out for a practice yesterday afternoon. Nothing but kicking and passing was practised.

Captain Maynard's ankle was not seriously hurt on Saturday and he will be in the game with Father Stanton's Ottawa College fourteen next Saturday. Lou Sory and Bob Thompson are also improving and will probably be in condition by Saturday.

A meeting of the athletic directorate of the University of Toronto was held yesterday, at which the matter of erecting additional new stands was brought up, but nothing definite was done, beyond referring the matter to a committee, as the championship in the various unions are still undecided. It is understood, however, that in the event of the University team winning the Intercollegiate championship by defeating Ottawa College next Saturday, a stand seating five thousand more people will be erected, and it is probable that the stands bringing the total seating capacity of the stadium up to 20,000 also will be built.

Twenty thousand persons could be accommodated in the field, as it is but the university officials' wish to seat everyone, if such is possible.

MCGILL HOCKEY TEAM WILL PLAY CORNELL

Arrangements are practically concluded now for the hockey tour during the Christmas holidays. Already two games have been arranged with either Cleveland or Poston, and others may be planned for. These will be played on the 28th, 29th, and 30th of January. A series will also be played with Cornell, who are probably our most dangerous rivals, having played ten games last season and lost none. On January 1st a game will be played at New York, against either the New York Athletic Club or the Crescents. It is hoped that a big gang will accompany the team on this tour, and special rates and special cars will be secured for the students.

Another important game will be played against Harvard when they will visit us about the middle of January. It is just possible that the Arena may be secured for this game.

speaker enumerated a long series of arguments without discussing them in any detail.

The leader of the affirmative then closed his case by criticizing several of the statements made by his opponents, and summing up the points registered in his favor.

Prof. Leacock, being called upon for a few remarks, briefly referred to the serious and difficult task imposed upon him of choosing the debaters.

He had no axe to grind, and would make his recommendations in a fearless and impartial manner.

Any of the speakers might consider themselves free to call upon him for any suggestions or criticism. After giving several very valuable pointers on the most effective use of figures in debate, Professor Leacock resumed his seat amid applause.

On a vote being taken to express the personal opinions of the students on the question, the negative majority.

The next debate will deal with the baleful influence of Rudyard Kipling's poetry.
